Questions About theWashBoard.org

What is theWashBoard.org?

A scholarship search engine for all types of scholarships for Washington State high school and college students.

Who runs theWashBoard.org?

The Washington State Higher Education Coordinating Board and organizations around the state that promote college readiness.

How does theWashBoard.org work?

Students create an account based on their academics, extracurricular experience, and post-secondary plans, and are matched with scholarship opportunities. Deadlines, qualifications, application requirements, and links to further information are provided for most scholarship listings.

How is theWashBoard.org different from FastWeb and other national scholarship listings?

TheWashBoard.org is locally focused—providing scholarship information that is most relevant to Washington students.
